

Blog Comment Policy

We encourage you to comment on this blog. All viewpoints are welcome, but we reserve the right to make editorial decisions regarding submitted comments. While comments are moderated, we will review and post them as promptly as possible.

There are some instances when comments will be edited or deleted as follows:

1. Comments deemed to be spam will be deleted. Including a link to relevant content is permitted, but comments should be relevant to the post topic.
2. Comments including profanity will be deleted.
3. Comments containing language or concepts that could be deemed offensive will be deleted.
4. Comments that attack or disparage an individual will be deleted.

The views expressed within posted comments do not necessarily reflect those of the Law Library staff or Board of Trustees. This policy is subject to change without notice.
